

PRESS RELEASE -- 14 April 2006

NEW HEAD FOR ACTUARIAL RESEARCH CENTRE

The Actuarial Research Centre of Australia (ARCA) has announced the appointment of Evan Predavec as its first Executive Director.

“ARCA is pleased to have someone with Evan’s depth of experience to head up its operations” said John Trowbridge, Chair of the ARCA Board.

“I’m thrilled to be joining ARCA at such an exciting time.” said Evan Predavec. “ARCA has the potential to make a significant contribution to public policy development in Australia.”

ARCA is an independent non-profit research organization recently founded under the auspices of the Institute of Actuaries of Australia. ARCA conducts research using actuarial skills and talents into areas that impact on public policy development and the well-being of the Australian community.

Evan Predavec has had a long career in professional publishing including roles as Managing Director of Lexis Asia Pacific and Vice President for Global Product Strategy with Lexis Nexis.
